RABBI JOSEPH H. LOOKSTEIN UPPER SCHOOL OF RAMAZ GRADUATES 84 SENIORS

30 Graduates to Study in Israel Next Year
2 National Merit Scholarship Winners; 7 Semi-Finalists and 18 Letters of Commendation

One of the finest classes in the history of Ramaz was graduated from the Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein Upper School at ceremonies held in our Main Synagogue on Wednesday, June 14. Of the 84 graduates, 30 will be spending next year in Israel, 26 of them in the full-time study of Torah with four others in part-time programs of Judaic Studies. This is the best percentage among graduating classes since the development of the Israel study programs.

The students have distinguished themselves in many ways. Their performance on the National Merit Scholarship Contest is probably a record for the country. Twenty-seven out of the 84 graduates received some sort of recognition in that contest. That is over 32 percent of the class. Two of the students were National Merit Winners, 7 were Semi-Finalists in the competition, while 18 received Letters of Commendation.

We are very proud of this graduating class which has excelled not only in academic work and inter-scholastic competition of all sorts, but also in menschlichkeit. As a group, they conduct themselves with dignity, refinement and a sense of commitment to their fellow human beings that is truly remarkable. They represent, on the whole, much of what a Ramaz education is all about.

In addition, they have been admitted to some of the finest colleges in the country in large numbers. Among the schools which our graduates will be attending are the following: Barnard, Bar-Ilan, Brandeis, Brown, Columbia, Cornell, CUNY, Dartmouth, Duke, Goucher, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, MIT, NYU, Princeton, Stern, SUNY, Tufts, University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania, Washington University, Williams College, Yale and Yeshiva, among others.
The Saddest Ship Afloat: A Half-Century Later

By HASKEL LOOKSTEIN

On May 13, 1939, the St. Louis, a luxurious cruiseship of the Hamburg-America Line, set sail from Hamburg, bound for Havana. On board were 907 German Jews, fleeing from Nazi Germany, who held landing certificates entitling them to enter Cuba. These certificates, purchased for $510 to $300, were not honored by the Cuban government to the consternation and horror of the St. Louis passengers. The ship remained in the port of Havana from May 27 until June 2, after which it was forced to depart.

The ship sailed slowly up and down the Florida coast while negotiations were conducted with Cuba by Lawrence Berenson of the Joint Distribution Committee. The distress of the passengers was front page news in the New York Times on June 2, 5, 6, 7 and 8. On three occasions the Times editorialized about "The Saddest Ship Afloat Today," lading with her "cargo of despair," cruising off the coast of Miami whose shimmering towers were "the embattlements of another forbidden city." These unfortunate, who were rejected by everyone, wrote the Times, will be welcomed home by "Germany, with all the hospitality of its concentration camps."

On June 9, The Times editorialized: "We can only hope that some hearts will soften somewhere and some refuge be found. The cruise of the St. Louis cries high to heaven of man's inhumanity to man."

Despite its compassionate editorial, The Times failed to ask why the St. Louis refugees were not offered asylum in the United States. It remained for James Cannon Jr., Episcopal bishop of Richmond, Va., to raise that question in a letter to the Richmond Times-Dispatch: "Why did not the President, Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of Labor and other officials...arrange for the landing of these refugees who had been caught in this maelstrom of distress and agony through no fault of their own?"

Cannon's obvious question, which eluded most observers, was not posed even by Jewish writers. The Yiddish press in New York and the Anglo-Jewish press all over the country bemoaned the plight of the St. Louis passengers, printed their cries of anguish in the form of telegrams from the St. Louis, told the story as it unfolded day-by-day, but they never asked why the passengers could not be received here in the United States.

Fifty years later we understand the reasons for Jewish reticence. Anti-Semitism in America was at its height. The Father Coughlins of that day preached hatred of Jews over coast-to-coast radio networks and struck fear into the hearts of American Jews. Furthermore, the anti-alien forces in Congress were powerful and influential. People like Senator Reynolds of North Carolina and Congressman Rankin of Mississippi intimidated the Jewish community and made Jews fearful of pleading with the U.S. government to open the doors of America to these 907 unfortunate people.

American Jews feared that they were to ask for this simple humanitarian gesture if the forces arrayed against them in Congress would demand that the doors be shut entirely and that all refugees be barred. Looking back on the double tragedy of refugees without a haven and American Jews too frightened to plead for their rescue, Jacob Lestschinsky wrote in the Congress Bulletin on June 16, 1939:

"It did not even occur to Jews to appeal to the American Government to find a way of saving the hapless passengers of the St. Louis..."We are" (we are) showing increasing signs of becoming spiritually and morally reconciled to accept the ghetto and almost voluntarily to surrender the positions won by the emancipation. Our own depression and demoralization are immeasurably more dangerous to ourselves than the blows of our enemies."

As the St. Louis steamed slowly back across the Atlantic toward an expected tragic landing in Hamburg, Morris Troper of the Joint Distribution Committee worked feverishly to find a haven somewhere in the world for these doomed passengers. Finally, one day before the ship was to arrive in Germany, he successfully negotiated with The Netherlands, Belgium, France and England to each take one-quarter of the passengers. Thus ended what one observer has called "the voyage of the damned," a tragic saga of hopeless victims and helpless bystanders.

In our own day history has repeated itself. The story of the St. Louis has recurred, most recently in the case of the boat people of South Vietnam and other berefted lands of Southeast Asia. The lessons of the St. Louis have not been ignored. The United States and other countries have admitted hundreds of thousands of these refugees.

In a remarkable twist of history, Israel was the first to open its doors to the boat people. On June 21, 1977, the day Menachem Begin took office as prime minister, his first official act was to grant asylum to 66 Vietnamese who had been picked up by an Israeli freighter and rejected at several Far Eastern ports. The day, by coincidence, was exactly 38 years to the day from that when the last of the St. Louis refugees disembarked in Southampton, England.

HONORED GUESTS FROM ISRAEL VISIT KJ BETWEEN PESACH AND SHAVUOT

During the week of pesach and ending with the Shavuot festival, a number of guests from Israel visited our congregation and addressed various groups in the community.

On Shabbat, May 27, Yuli Koscharovsky was our guest. Having arrived in Israel just two months ago, he spent a few weeks here as the guest of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry. KJ was the only congregation he visited in the New York area. Mr. Koscharovsky addressed the congregation from the pulpit on Shabbat morning and spoke about how meaningful our support for him was as he waited 17 years for a visa.

On the Shabbat before Shavuot we had the honor of hosting Leah Shakediel, the heroic Jewish woman who was elected to the Religious Council of Yerucham, a development town in the Negev, and who had to fight the establishment in order to occupy her seat on that Council. Mrs. Shakediel gave a memorable address at a seudah shlishit on the subject of “Jewish responsibility for the Jewish woman of today.”

Finally, on Shavuot we had the honor of having Rabbi Aharon and Rabanit Malka Bina in our congregation and in the community. Rabbi and Mrs. Bina gave shiurim during the Tikun Leil Shavuot and they davened with us on the first day of Yom Tov and the Shabbat which followed. Rabbi and Mrs. Bina are of course the primary teachers and advisors to the American students at Yeshivat Hakotel.

At all in the weeks between Pesach and Shavuot were fascinating and exciting at KJ and afforded many of us an opportunity to meet and to listen to some of the wonderful Israelis of our day.

KJ LETTER CAMPAIGN TAKES OFF

We are very happy to announce that we have received in the office dozens of letters from members of the congregation to the Secretary of State Baker, Senators Moynihan and D’Amato, and several Congregations expressing their strong support for Israel in its current struggle. These letters were written in response to appeals by Rabbi Lookstein and the suggestions made by Malcolm Hoenlein and others at our Annual Shabbaton. The mailing by our Political Affairs Committee was instrumental in stimulating many letters. Among the copies that we received in our office were responses from the Secretary, the Senators and Congressmen who received the letters.

We ask that every reader of this Bulletin take a few moments to write to at least one governmental personality to express support for Israel in this critical time. Remember: the letters are weighed as well as counted. Right now, the weight and the count are going heavily for the Arabs. The only way to change that is for each person to do his or her part. It is literally up to YOU!

A TIME TO EMBRACE AND A TIME TO LET GO
10th MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO RABBI JOSEPH H. LOOKSTEIN
by Rabbi Haskel Lookstein

On Wednesday evening, June 29, 1979, my father, of blessed memory, began a chapter in his unfinished autobiography. He entitled it "A Time To Embrace And A Time To Let Go." It was a sad chapter. It spoke of the need to give up leadership of institutions and causes that he held particularly dear. The first two pages which he wrote that night ended with the midrashic portrayal of the sons of Aaron walking behind Moses and Aaron and saying to each other: "When Will These Two Old Men...

My father never finished that sentence. He never completed the thought. He put his pen down without writing the word "Die." And he never wrote again. During that night he suffered the stroke that led to his passing sixteen days later.

That's about as close as one should come to ascribing to his premonitions or prescience. It is almost a "Rabaiyishe" story. But it is true; and it leaves me with one message in two parts.

First, my father, like other great Jewish personalities, did not die. As his children - physical and spiritual - live on, he lives on as well. Secondly, there is a time to embrace and a time to let go, but when we let go, we let go only of the person; we continue to embrace the principles. We let go of the man but we continue to embrace the message. We let go of the physical being but we continue to embrace the spiritual essence.

Ten years after his passing we might assess what is it that we are trying to embrace.

First and foremost, we try to embrace his qualities as a family man. In a letter that he wrote two and a half years before his passing he urged the family to remain close, as thank God, we have always been. He assured us that "Whatever occasions you will celebrate together, be sure that my spirit will be there." In the almost ten years since his passing we have been blessed by the fact that every one of us is still here except for an uncle, my father's sister's husband, who passed away several years ago. And at every happy family occasion - and there have been many - we have felt his spirit. When he died, he and my mother only had two great-grandchildren. Now, thank God, there be three, and more than one of them named for him. He would have loved that. He would have had sixteen different Yiddish terms of endearment for each of the great-grandchildren, as he had for the two - Erica and Lizzzy - whom he knew and loved.

My mother continues, thank God, to be the center of our family. We know that her home is what it always was: A gathering place for all of us. That is what we embrace even as we let go.

Second, all of us try to embrace him as a leader of our community. I looked around the Shul at morning services today and I saw that two-thirds of the Minyan was composed of Ramaz graduates or parents - and, in one case, a great-grandparent of Ramaz students. My father would have loved that. He would have been very upset by the small number of people at the service and he would have let us know in no uncertain terms how upset he was. But he would have liked and he would have appreciated the nature of the Duranah - so many would be there.

Child, I am sure he would have been as devastated as anyone over Alan's accident, but he would have given the family encouragement and perhaps that is one of the sources for their extraordinary strength - beginning with Alan himself. He would have been so proud of his young people in the Shul - Fred Bernstein, whom he would have called Freddy; and Gil Kahn, and a host of others who are on the boards of the Shul and the School. What Nachas he would have had from Mel Newman as a Past Chairman of the Ramaz Board, and Steve Gross as a Vice Chairman and David Kahn as Treasurer and David Sarna as Financial Secretary. It isn't every community that is fortunate enough to have such continuity. He founded Ramaz, in part, in order to give permanence to this community.

He would have been proud of the fact that one young man who was approached to serve as a trustee responded with the following words: "I don't think I am sufficiently religious and observant to be a Trustee of this congregation. I think that a Trustee of a Shul like this ought to be someone at whom people can look and say he represents what the Shul stands for.

You know, we accepted this temporary demurral, but what this young man could not know is that my father would have considered such a response to be an absolute indication of how deserving this young man was to be a Trustee of his Shul.

He would have loved the baby carriages in the downstairs vestibule on Shabbat morning, but he would not have loved the sounds that some of the children make in Shul. He would have been thrilled with the increase in attendance, but upset about the rising decible level of conversation. We have to be careful about these things. He wanted this Shul to be as beautiful and as aesthetically appealing as a reform temple and yet as a Chassidic and traditional temple. We will never reach either extreme but we should never stop striving to attain them. God forbid that we should end up with the esthetics of a Shiteibel and the warmth and vibrancy of a temple. (And I mean no offense to either Shiteibach or temples.)

We have heard of his vision of Ramaz either. As Rav Soloveitchik said to me a few years ago when he asked me how the enrollment of Ramaz was going and I told him, thank God it was going very well, he responded: "That's because you haven't changed." When I asked him what he meant by that, he answered: "You haven't moved to the right, don't let them pull you to the right."

Ten years after the passing of Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein we have not pulled to the right. We are still being faithful to the goals and purposeful about the message we are trying to communicate, but we remain a Centrist Synagogue and school, committed to teaching and preaching menschlichkeit, tolerance, respect for all Jews and derech eretz toward all people. But not forever holier than thou; righteous but not self-righteous; observant of Torah and Mitzvot but not competitive in the search for the Chumra of the month.

As an institution and as a community we are embracing yet go by all of the values and principles which my father taught us throughout his 56 years.

Finally, we are trying to hold fast to another major principle of my father's life: his Ahavat Yisrael. Many times during the last ten years I would have given anything just to be able to ask him what he thought about the internecine hatred which abounds among jews today. I can only imagine his white hot words to describe the stone throwers on the haredi right and the Orthodox bashers on the liberal left; the intolerant and insensitive religious power brokers in Israel and the opportunistic opponents from liberal Judaism in America who are trying to seize political power in Israel and who demand communal funds for projects and programs that do not even exist. My father would have disagreed strongly with the Lubavitcher Rebbe in the "Who is a Jew" controversy in November, but it would not have diminished in the slightest his love and admiration for the Rebbe. He had the ability to love and respect those with whom he did not agree because he viewed all Jews as members of a family. We have tried to embrace that attitude at a time when people are choosing sides and lining up to hurl insults at each other.

This attitude is not simply manifested in words. It has been translated into action. The leadership role that our congregation played in operation Moses was an example of Ahavat Yisrael in practice. On appeal this year for the passage to freedom at the UJA kick-off in Alan and Elizabeth Dof's home is a further example. We have not lessened our support for the congregation, for Ramaz or for Yeshiva University. On the contrary, our membership is giving more and more generously to these causes which are so near to us. But most of us recognize that our first responsibility is to Klal Yisrael. That is what my father taught us. He probably learned it from my great-grandfather, Rabbi Moses Z. Margolies who taught a young Ramaz student from the Lower East Side how to appreciate Jewish secularists, how to promote Mizrachi and how to develop the attitude that every Jew is potentially religious. He or she may simply not be there yet. But no one is without a neshama.

So, almost ten years after his passing I am not sure exactly what he would have thought about every single activity of our community but I think, on the whole, he would have been pleased. I don't know, for example, what his reaction would have been to a Women's Tefillah Group in our chapel, but he probably would have been ready to give it a chance. It was a trial blazer for most of his life and we are following the paths that he blazed for us.

"There is a time to embrace and a time to let go." Ten years ago we let go with tears and grief. Today, we embrace with love, with respect and with confidence. We are forever bound up among the living - among the living in the Yeshiva Shel Ma'alah where he has earned his place and among us, the living, in the Yeshiva Shel Mata where he honors and preserves the kind of community that he labored so lovingly to create. That is his ultimate reward - and it is ours as well.
117th ANNUAL MEETING

GAVEL PASSES FROM BENJAMIN BROWN TO STANLEY GUREWITSCH

Mr. Brown then spoke about the fact that this will be the third year in a row with the same dues structure. He told the membership that this is possible because of the extraordinary generosity of KJ members through the Annual Synagogue Appeal, which in the coming year must raise approximately $450,000 in order to cover the difference between what our dues and normal income brings in and our expenses entail.

Benjy closed with a special tribute to Iran for all of her support and encouragement. He thanked his family, his fellow Officers, the Rabbis and the entire membership. He assured us all that “I shall continue to be available to KJ in any capacity. I am leaving the Presidency, but I do not wish to leave an active involvement in the congregation’s affairs. I feel greatly indebted to KJ for helping me to become what I never thought I would be. I shall try, with God’s help, to express that gratitude by continued commitment to Torah and mitzvot and to all of you in this wonderful congregation.”

The assemblage gave Benjy a standing ovation in tribute not alone to his address but to his person and to all that he has meant to the congregation throughout the past six years.

Memorial to Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein

Mr. Brown then called upon Rabbi Haskel Lookstein to deliver the annual tribute to his father. During the past eight years members of the congregation have given this tribute. This year it was felt that following the special memorial addresses by Dr. Norman Lamm, Dr. Emanuel Rackman and Prof. Elie Wiesel it would be fitting for Rabbi Haskel Lookstein to deliver a special tribute. The text of that tribute is printed elsewhere in this Bulletin.

Report of Committee of Nominations

The President then called upon Richard E. Kobrin, a member of the Nominating Committee, to present the report of that committee, a report which was developed by Nathan Salzman, Joseph Lorch and Steven Gross, along with Mr. Kobrin.

Mr. Kobrin nominated Joseph Lorch, a former Vice President of KJ and former Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Ramaz, and Fanny Wald, a cherished longtime member of KJ who has been devoted to numerous Jewish causes throughout her life, as Honorary Trustees.

Mr. Kobrin then indicated that Tova Balow, Dr. Norman Javitt and Stephen J. Kule could no longer serve on the Board of Trustees because they have completed the constitutional limit of nine years on the Board. He thanked them for their service. He also noted that Jillian Brown Borenstein and Dr. Bernard Gabaiky have asked to be relieved of the responsibility of serving as Trustees.

Mr. Kobrin then presented the following for three year terms on the Board: Harvey Azza, Dr. Adam Bender, Elias Buchwald, Dr. Nathalie Friedman, Sue Javitt, Harry Kleinhans, Richard Kobrin, Armand Lindenbaum, Herb Mehl, Sue Robins, Irvin Shapiro, Sam Silverstein, and Israel Waldman.

The President called for a vote and the above Trustees were elected unanimously.

Mr. Kobrin then indicated that the Constitution, in Article 5, Section I, provides that the Board of Trustees may, from time to time, elect other Officers besides President. Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. It is the recommendation of the Nominating Committee that a second Vice President and a Financial Secretary be added, as was the case last year, and that a Gabbai also be added. Mr. Kobrin then nominated Irwin B. Robins as Gabbai, Fred Distenfeld as Second Vice President, and Stephen J. Kule as Financial Secretary. He then nominated, further, David Levy as Vice President, Dr. Gilbert N. Kahn as Secretary and Fred Baumgarten as Treasurer. All of these were elected unanimously.

Mr. Kobrin then thanked Benjamin Brown for his extraordinary service as President of the congregation and he placed in nomination the name of Stanley Gurewitsch for the office of President of the congregation. Mr. Gurewitsch was elected by acclamation.

Presentation to Benjamin Brown

As his first act in office, Mr. Gurewitsch expressed the thanks of the congregation to Benjamin Brown for all that he has done for this community and he expressed the hope that Benjy would continue to serve KJ and its members for many years to come. On behalf of the congregation he presented the outgoing President with a beautiful challah board encased in a modern silver tray together with a lovely challah knife inscribed to Mr. Brown from his friends in the congregation.

Appointment of Associate Trustees

In accordance with the provision of the Constitution, Mr. Gurewitsch then nominated 15 Associate Trustees to serve on the Board. They are: Neil Boisrisky, Francine Brown, Lionel Etra, Martine Fox, Ira Gober, Rae Gurewitsch, Michael Japans, Jeffrey Kaufman, Barry Kluger, Yvonne Koppel, Edward Lukashok, George Rohe, Dr. Stephen Stowe, Ronald Tauber, and Burton L. Usdan.

Memorial to Departed Members

Mr. Gurewitsch then called upon Rabbi Lookstein to present brief memorials to the following members of the congregation who passed away since our last Annual Meeting:

Lou Bacon
Bertha Citron
Esther Greenberg
Paula Herman
Jean Kassover
Walter Koppel
Melvin Lazarus
Lynette Levy
Jacob M. Miller

Annual Meeting of Ramaz

Mr. Gurewitsch then declared the 117th Annual Meeting of the congregation adjourned and he called upon Steven Gross to preside over the Annual Meeting of the Ramaz School. Mr. Gross called upon Joseph Lorch to present the report of the Nominating Committee. Mr. Lorch nominated for full terms on the Board of Ramaz: Avrom Doft, Dr. Nathalie Friedman, Stephen J. Kule, Jean Lindenbaum, Roanna Shorofsky, Barbara Zimet.

For Parent Trustees he nominated Judith Hauptman Adesnik, Jacob Berman, Joan Meyers.

As Alumni Trustees he placed in nomination the following names: Dr. Terry Ann Kruilwich, Pamela Nash, Francine Gerber.

For Community Trustees, Mr. Gross nominated the following: Rabbi Neil Gillman, Pearl Hack, Joan Sadinoff Katz, Rabbi Dale Polakoff, Rabbi Jacob J. Schacter, Radine Abramson Spier.

All of the people nominated by Mr. Lorch were elected by the assemblage at which point the Annual Meeting of the Ramaz School was adjourned.

Mr. Gurewitsch then called upon Rabbi Lookstein for a few closing remarks.

Rabbi Lookstein spoke about Benjamin Brown as an inspiring example of someone who helped the synagogue to establish itself on the three pillars with which the Ethics of the Fathers opens: Torah, worship, and acts of charity.

He described Benjamin Brown as a person devoted to the observance of Torah and its study. He cited the outgoing President for his consistent attendance at Talmud shirur through the years. The Rabbi praised Benjy Brown for his extraordinary reliability as a member of the daily minyan. We never had a President, he said, who worshipped literally every day in the morning throughout his tenure. We never had a President who was more devoted to the synagogue in terms of service. Notask was too light, no responsibility was too taxing.

Finally, as a practitioner of the art of chess, Benjy and his family have established an enviable record. Both he and Fran are members of our chevra kadisha. They visit everyone in the hospital. They are the first to call for happy and sad occasions. They render acts of kindness with their substance and their persons. They are wonderful examples worthy of emulation.

The Rabbi expressed the hope that Benjy be able to continue to work in behalf of the Jewish community in other positions of leadership and as a supporting member of the congregation. He then invited everyone to join together in the Social Hall for a collation and a social hour.

DASHEVSKY DENIED EXIT Visa

We are saddened to note that Vladimir Dashevsky continues to be denied an exit visa for the purpose of emigrating to Israel. It is now more than ten years since March, 1979, when Dashevsky was first refused permission to leave the Soviet Union.

A fifty-one year old astrophysicist, Dashevsky's family includes his wife, Tatiana, who is thirty-one and their two sons, Shmuel who is eight, Daniel who is seven and their daughter, Tamar who turned two this month.

Zev and his family wish to be reunited with his daughter, Irina and her husband, Kara Ivanov, who have been in Israel since 1987.

THE STORY

Vladimir Dashevsky worked for many years in research at the Institute of Terrestrial Magnetism. Immediately after applying for an exit visa in 1977, he was forced to give up his prestigious position there and since then has been earning a living tutoring high school students in physics.

Two years after his application was submitted, he was refused on the grounds that he possessed state secrets, though he had never had access to classified information. Later this reason was dropped and the family received another refusal based on the grounds that Tatiana's parents refused to give their daughter permission to leave the USSR.

Dashevsky's broad intellectual interest brought him to the study of general philosophy through which he read the works of Martin Buber, five of whose books he translated into Russian. Dashevsky then became interested in his own Jewish background. He taught himself Hebrew and began studying texts in their original. He became an observant Jew and helped a large group of young Jews to study their language and heritage.

Anyone who may be travelling to the Soviet Union and who may wish further information should contact the synagogue office.
